The Indian Institute of Management (IIM) Visakhapatnam conducted a two-day Faculty Development Programme (FDP) for the teachers of the management departments from the state universities in Andhra Pradesh.

IIM Bangalore, Professor of Strategy Ganesh N. Prabhu led the two-day programme on the pedagogies in management education. The programme was coordinated by Prof. Kaveri Krishnan of IIM-V.

Vizag MP Dr Kambhampati Hari Babu who graced the valedictory of the programme as chief guest expressed happiness that his suggestion on conducting a workshop on management pedagogies was implemented at short notice by IIM-V.

Explaining that the risk-taking ability will fetch success in any field, he urged management teachers to instill the spirit of entrepreneurship in management education.

Management institutions could contribute by spreading awareness about government schemes aimed at promoting entrepreneurship in their own students as well as in the interested and aspiring sections of the society.

Students and academia have a great role to play in building New India. The country is in need of 'Job Givers' rather than mere 'Job Seekers'.

IIM-V director professor M. Chandrasekhar thanked Dr Hari Babu for his constant encouragement and assured that IIM-V would continue to leverage the healthy ecosystem in the sunrise state of AP in designing and delivering innovative programmes that enhance the knowledge capacities in the region.

Professor Rama Mohana Rao, principal of the AU College of Arts and Commerce and a participant in the workshop, shared how beneficial the programme has been, due to its many distinctive features.
